SoCal NOMA will kickoff the VIRTUAL 2021 Architecture Boot Camp in January. The camp will connect youth to architecture and design and encourage students to be active participants in uplifting their communities. This is a 6 months program, which will lead students through the design process and the design of a project. The half year program will host a series of studios that include Design Workshops, Community Project Tours, Architectural Field Trips and Local College Tours. The program is designed to enhance youths understanding of design, community responsibility and construction, through mentorship and design, and advance programs that prepare students to enter college architecture programs.
